

PATENTLenovo Docket No. JP920020249US1

This paragraph begins in line 15 of page 11 and includes this passage beginning on line 18:

"It is not necessary for the information processor 10 in this example to have the user authentication section 240. In other respects, the construction of the information processor 10 is substantially the same as that of the information processor 10 shown in Figure 1."

Thus the substantial difference between Species I and III appears to be that Species III need not have a user authentication section 240. Otherwise the construction of species I and III are substantially the same.

The only claim which appears to include the user authentication section, that is Species I, is claim 12. Therefore claim 12 belongs to Species I and is withdrawn.

The remaining claims, 1-5, 7-11, 13-15 belong to Species III (lack a user authentication section and lack helical grooves).

In summary,

Species I: claim 12

Species II: claim 6

Species III: claims 1-5, 7-11, 13-15

REMARKS

Applicants elect Species III, which corresponds to claims 1-5, 7-11, 13-15, without traverse.

Respectfully Submitted,

Carlos Munoz-Bustamante

Reg. No. 51,349

Customer No. 53493

Lenovo (US) Inc.,

(919) 294-0687

EMAIL: cbustama@us.lenovo.com